36 DEAD IN THREE ALPINE AVALANCHES

Geneva, Switzerland, Jan. 22—(P)—The death toll stood at 136 today as three more avalanches struck Alpine slopes, killing 36 more people.

Austria had at least 62 dead, Switzerland 59 and Italy 15 as a result of great slides crashing down Alpine slopes for the past few days. Whole villages were buried, houses broken like kindling and families entombed by the thundering snow.

In Austria, where an untold number of persons still are missing, Interior Minister Oscar Helmer said the government is considering appropriate aid measures for the victims.

The semi-official Swiss news agency said that the disaster struck at least 15 localities in Switzerland. Besides the 59 dead, said, 20 others were missing and another 20 were reported seriously injured.

In Italy, in addition to the dead, at least 50 persons were injured, many of them caught beneath rocks crumbled by the weight of the snow.

The snow still was falling on the Italian side of the Alps, causing fears there would be more avalanches.

On the Swiss side the number of avalanches appeared to be decreasing, but officials warned that there still was danger.

Thousands of British and American sports lovers were temporarily isolated at ski resorts. Among the marooned were 30 British and 70 Americans at Davos, Switzerland.

None of the resorts were believed to be in any danger, however. They were said to have ample food stocks.

The unusual number of slides resulted from heavy snows last week. Avalanches are not uncommon in the Alps, but the weekend number was believed a record.

Throughout the night rescue workers toiled feverishly in an effort to save some 14 men and women still buried at the Swiss village of Vals, 4,000 feet up in the Alps.

A great mass of snow roared down into the little hamlet Saturday night, knocking over five houses and burying 31 persons. Twelve were brought out alive yesterday and five dead, including three children.

Four cantons in southeast central Switzerland were the most severely hit by the slides. They were Graubunden, Uri, Glarus and Aargau.

At Safflen-Neukirch in Graubunden a family of six was buried beneath a mass of snow yesterday. The parents and two children.

Search Organized In Tidioute Area For What May Be Answer To "The Thing"

Warren county may have the answer to what "The Thing" is, but it's just as much of a mystery as ever.

A party of hunters from the Tidioute area fanned out from the head of Magee Run toward Cole Hill today in search of what has been variously described as a panther, a cougar, an overgrown wildcat or just a plain ordinary "What's-It".

There also have been reports of tracks three inches in diameter, and some weird howling at night.

The panther report comes close on the heels of reports from the Grand Valley sector that a wolf or wild dog of part-wolf ancestry is thought to be roaming that area.

This animal, according to reports, also leaves a track about three inches long and two and one-half inches wide. Reports also say the Grand Valley "You-Name-It" is heavy enough to break through a snow crust which is almost strong enough to bear the weight of a man.

Many persons accept the reports with a tongue-in-the-cheek attitude. There are just as many, however, who feel they have seen or heard evidence to convince them that there's some strange animal roaming the area.

Among those who saw "something" was Patty Gibson, daughter of Rep. and Mrs. Allen M. Gibson of Sheffield. She said she was on her way to Titusville a week ago and sighted the strange animal between Pittsfield and Garland where the road turns off to Garland. It was at night and the "what's-it" ran across the road. She stopped the car and turned lights on it. The animal was black or dark brown, as large as a huge dog with very short legs. "I never say anything like that before," Patty said.

Immediate Participation Of Spain Needed For Defense Of Western Europe, Gavin Says

Washington, Jan. 22—Rep. Gavin (R-Pa.) said today the defense of Western Europe "requires the immediate participation of Spain." Gavin in reporting on a House Armed Services Committee trip to Europe, said that from a military standpoint, "we cannot afford longer to neglect so valuable a potential ally as Spain."

Gavin made a flying trip to Grance, Italy, Germany, Austria, Britain and Spain as a one-man armed services subcommittee between Nov. 18 and Dec. 16.

His report, made public today, was submitted to Secretary of Defense Marshall and Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee.

Gavin, who has made similar inspection trips during the last several years, said: "I found more respect and friendliness for the United States in Spain than in most other countries of Europe."

The reason for this, he said, "is because we have not put them (the Spanish) on our relief rolls or promised them large-scale aid."

Gavin said Spain "suffers from shortage of many essential raw materials, sparse rainfall and, during the past year, a serious drought which has not only reduced the food supply but curtailed hydroelectric power production." He added:

"From a military standpoint, however, Spain offers a much more favorable picture. They have several major air bases, well disposed around the country, which could be used as bases for the air defense of Europe."

"Their army of 400,000 is, I believe, well-led and is certainly the largest anti-Communist force in Europe."

"Their navy, which is somewhat obsolete, could be equipped for coastal patrol and anti-submarine duty."

Bradley Confident U. S. Planning Will Avert A Disaster

Washington, Jan. 22—(P)—Gen. Omar Bradley told congress today the military forces the United States is planning "are sufficient in my opinion to avert disaster for our country."

Testifying before the senate preparedness subcommittee, the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff said bombing of American cities might be possible but "There is little real danger now of the continental United States being invaded and overrun so far as we can see."

Bradley said U. S. air defenses, "combined with the efforts of the Canadians," could avert "complete disaster" but "if a determined enemy is willing to expend the effort, some bombers will get through."

Bradley was before the committee to endorse the defense department's proposals for drafting of 18-year-olds and extending the period of draft service from 21 to 27 months.

He gave the committee in addition a briefing on how the services plan to meet any attack.

Fuel To Industrial Consumers Curtailed By Three Gas Companies In Pittsburgh

Three Pittsburgh gas companies drastically curtailed supplies to industrial consumers today as a cold wave sent temperatures plummeting.

The western part of the state was hit hardest by the cold wave moving in from the Midwest. However, sub-freezing readings were reported in many areas. Readings of 10 to 15 above zero were common in western Pennsylvania.

Manufacturers Light and Heat Company of Pittsburgh cut off all gas to industrial customers to conserve supplies for domestic consumers.

Peoples Gas Company made a 50 per cent slash to industries and Equitable Gas Company asked industrial consumers to use gas for maintenance only.

There was no immediate report of widespread layoffs although some employees may be without employment until the emergency ends.

The complete curtailment ordered by Manufacturers Gas Company hit plants principally outside of Pittsburgh.

U. S. POLICY ON FORMOSA IS OUTLINED

Lake Success, Jan. 22—(P)—A declaration that American security needs dictate U. S. policy on Formosa confronted United Nations delegates today.

U. N. diplomats, who have been trying to work out a new formula for peace in Korea, also were told that:

1. The U. S. wants Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist Chinese government represented at any conference on the future of Formosa, last-ditch island stronghold of that regime.

2. The U. S. will continue to oppose seating the Chinese Reds in the U. N.

The declaration of U. S. policy was made last night by Ernest A. Gross, deputy U. S. representative to the U. N., in a formal statement.

It came on the eve of a meeting of the 60-nation political committee at which Soviet and Asian delegates were expected to oppose a U. S. resolution condemning Communist China for aggression in Korea.

Gross also said that a survey by the U. S. delegation indicated a majority of the committee would vote for the U. S. proposal, which asks the U. N. to consider means of punishing the Peiping Reds. A U. S. spokesman said a vote is expected by the middle of the week.

In a move which observers here interpreted as rejecting in advance any new peace appeal to Peiping, Gross said:

"We have reserved and continue to reserve the right to make certain that the question of Formosa will be handled in a way completely consistent with our national interest and security."

"We believe that if there are discussions of these matters there should be appropriate participation of directly interested governments, including the Nationalist government of China."

BROOKVILLE TOT IS OPEN STOVE VICTIM

Brookville, Jan. 22—(P)—Flames from an open gas stove ignited the clothing of five-year-old Gertrude Wolbert and burned her to death.

The child's parents Mr. and Mrs. Theodore L. Wolbert suffered serious burns as they beat out the fire yesterday after overtaking the child as she ran screaming through the house.

FRANKLIN MAN DIES IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Pittsburgh, Jan. 22—(P)—A death of a seven-year-old deaf mute girl found in the Ohio river is attributed to accidental drowning. Police said there is no evidence of foul play in the drowning of little Louise Ann Corbett. Her body was found in the river Saturday.

She had been missing from her Coraopolis home for 15 days.

MAN AND DOG DEAD

New Castle, Jan. 22—(P)—The bodies of a man and his dog, both shot through the head, were discovered by a passerby in a field in Shenango township, Lawrence county. Coroner Charles E. Allen said Walter Paul Kusnierczyk, 25, of New Castle, apparently shot the dog and then killed himself yesterday. Police will continue investigating.

Services in his memory will be held from the Sugar Grove Mission church at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday, with burial in the church cemetery. Removal will be made to the family home this evening from the Schoonover Funeral Home, and friends will be received there until noon Wednesday.

Friends wishing to remember him with flowers are asked to contribute to the foreign mission field instead.

TRYGVE LIE BACK

New York, Jan. 22—(P)—U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie, back from a trip to Europe, says there is "less fear of imminent World War" than there was last summer.

Lie, who returned by plane yesterday, said the increased hope that a conflagration can be avoided is due partly to the United Nations intervention in Korea and the U. N.'s "united action for peace."

Sunday Blaze Destroys Rogertown Landmark

A 24-room frame dwelling, on U. S. Route 6, at Rogertown, just east of the borough, considered a Warren county landmark since it was erected over 50 years ago by the late B. W. Rogers, and since 1924, owned by Herbert G. Eaton, of this city, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin, discovered about 1:45 o'clock Sunday morning. Valued at about $20,000 it was stated today that it was covered by insurance. Also destroyed were a number of household articles still in the home, owned by Mr. Eaton.

The property, unoccupied at the time, was in the process of negotiation of sale to a Jean D. Manke, of Pittsburgh, who planned to convert it into a nursing home, but, according to a representative of the Eaton family, this transaction had not been completed.

About the time the blaze was discovered by passing motorists, a number of calls were received at the Clarendon fire station, and the department under Chief Leonard Falbriski responded with two pumper trucks and about twenty men. In the meantime the Sheffield Department, raced to Clarendon to "stand by" at that place, and almost a dozen firemen from that village joined the Clarendon men.

T. K. McElhatten, who resided next to the Eaton house, and has been caretaker of the property for some years, is quoted as saying that earlier in the week he had checked the furnace, served by gas from a lease when everything seemed to be in order. No one is known to have entered the dwelling since Tuesday.

According to the firemen that structure was enveloped in flames when they arrived, and little could be done other than save adjoining buildings. Six streams of water were played on the flames from a stream supplied by Brown Run, Dutchman Run and Morrison Run, which converge near the River Road intersection. Jack Cronmiller, a Sheffield fireman, received an eye injury that required medical attention from a Warren physician. The firemen were at the scene from 1:45 until 10:45 a. m., and the ruins smoldered throughout the day during which hundreds of motorists drove to the scene to survey the ruins.

There were at least five rooms with huge halls on each of the three floors in the structure, erected over a large basement. Built by B. W. Rogers around the turn of the century, when the family operated a huge saw mill across the highway from the house, the area immediately was given the name of Rogertown which it still retains. The land upon which it stands was taken up by Alson Rogers in 1833-34, and later acquired by B. W. Rogers. Three streams fed the dam that was erected to turn a huge water wheel, Dutchman, Brown and Morrison Runs, and at one time water backed up in the race to a point at the present Marconi Outing Club, where the head gate was located.

NEW WAGE PACT IS SIGNED BY WORKERS AND PENELEC CO.

Approximately 2,300 employees of Pennsylvania Electric Company were granted wage increases as a result of a new contract signed by representatives of the company and six locals of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL). The new contract runs until May 25, 1952, and provides for an increase of 6% effective January 20, 1951. More than 135 people in the Warren area will be affected by the increase. An increase of 5% was also granted last May which makes a total of 11% since May 1950. The settlement which was reached at union management conferences at Johnstown, Pa., Friday, ended three months of negotiation.

R. A. Gallagher, Penelec vice president in charge of industrial relations, and P. J. Barran, Penelec Personnel Director, represented the company.

Two Minor Accidents And Usual Routine Calls Keep Police Busy Over Weekend

Two minor accidents and the usual run of routine calls occupied police attention over the weekend.

Nancy Arnold, 9, of 1206 Pennsylvania avenue, west, was discharged from Warren General Hospital when x-rays failed to reveal any fractures, although the youngster complained of back pains. She is to report for further x-rays at a later date.

The youngster was injured Friday morning while on her way to McCintock school when struck by a car operated by Jerry Button.

AIRSTRIIP AT WONJU AGAIN IN UN HANDS

Tokyo, Jan. 22—(P)—Four powerful Allied columns looking for a fight thrust deep into Communist territory today but Reds on the western Korean front didn't answer the challenge.

The motorized columns were bolstered with tanks and mobile artillery. They returned to the main Allied lines late Monday afternoon after blasting several Red patrols in minor skirmishes.

The columns ranged across a 50-mile span of the western front and pushed within less than 25 miles of Red-held Seoul. Termed officially a "reconnaissance in considerable force," the scouting patrols were charged with taking Red prisoners and obtaining information on Communist troop buildups.

On the central front, Allied forces retook Wonju airstrip and nearby Hill 233 Monday after a three-hour fight. A Communist regiment had held the commanding hill for two days.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway landed at the field a few hours after.

Wonju is the road and rail gate to the heart of south Korea. Allied forces withdrew last Tuesday after a fighting stand there of nearly three weeks but string patrols returned last Friday.

An Eighth Army communique Monday night said the Second's stand at Wonju starting Jan. 8 apparently had checked a planned Communist offensive through the mountain passes south of Wonju. But it added:

"Late reports indicate the Communists are again building up strength in the Wonju area for another offensive."

Along the western front, where the Reds also were reported massing troops for a new drive, the four Allied combat patrols met virtually no opposition.

One column drove straight through Osan and prowled north of the town. Osan, 28 air miles south of Seoul, is the place where the first American soldier of the Korean war was killed. There the green U. S. 24th Division began its bitter retreat last summer down the Korean peninsula.

A second column ranged through Kumyangjang, 10 miles northeast of Osan. A third unit drove north between these two columns.

The fourth column ran into a hour long fire-fight shortly after noon Monday (10 p. m. EST, Sunday) near Icheon, along the lateral

ATTENDANT FIRED FOLLOWING ESCAPE

Pittsburgh, Jan. 22—(P)—A Mayview State Hospital supervisor is under suspension today and an attendant has been discharged in the escape of a court-committed inmate.

Superintendent Preston Thomas said he has suspended Building Supervisor Frank Talericio and fired James E. Moore, attendant.

The action followed disclosure that Robert M. Kann escaped from the institution last December 27. He was committed to the institution on a state order after being accused of passing worthless checks. The court order described him as "not insane but mentally ill."

Immediate Participa- tion of Spain Needed

(From Page One)

Gavin said Spanish air bases
"would be more secure against enemy attack than those which we are now using in Britain and would, in my opinion, be a major value in case the British bases should be rendered untenable."

Gavin said Spain would need American assistance to bring its armed forces and equipment up to date. He said he considered this worth doing because, from a military standpoint, "we cannot afford longer to neglect so valuable a potential ally as Spain."

Gavin said in his 8,000-word report that there is less time to rebuild the defense of Western Europe than he believed one or two years ago. But that defense, he said, must be achieved chiefly by those countries, with the United States providing aid and assistance.

In this connection he repeated earlier recommendations to Congress that Germany be permitted to rearm.

Among Gavin's other observations were:

1. "I am regretfully forced to conclude that under the present Socialist government Britain is unable to feed and support itself, let alone prepare for a major defense effort."

2. "In our defense planning we have placed an undue emphasis upon French re-armament and have assumed a disproportionate share of the cost as compared to the probable results which will be obtained."

3. "Under present conditions it would appear that reliance upon Italian troops can be only for the defense of their own country, and I do not believe that they could make any effective contribution to other areas of the continent."

4. "The economic rehabilitation of France, Italy, Germany and Britain has largely been accomplished and with a few exceptions ditions, it was found that a lack of vegetation on upper, watershed slopes and poor land use greatly contribute to flood disaster. Pelting rains and rains of long duration, unchecked by vegetation cover on the soil, runs off the slopes. Ravulets are formed and, as they gather momentum, cut into the unprotected soil, loosening sand, mud and rocks which are carried into the major streams adding to the damaging ability of ordinarily quiet rivers and creeks.

or a combination of practices. For example, contour crop planting on agricultural soils and forest planting on non-agricultural, barren, hill and inaccessible farm areas.

In this respect forest planting plans are particularly practical at this time of year, as a general view of possible planting sites is possible.

The planting of pines and spruce are quite attractive in the winter season and besides growing a forest crop affords shelter to wildlife, and quite often act as windbreaks for farm buildings.

To obtain trees for spring planting, send a post card to the District Forester. A free booklet will provide information on planting methods, species to select and growing data on each of 16 species available.

These trees are available from State forest nurseries at the production cost of $6 per thousand trees. Plan to plant now.

MENU SUGGESTIONS

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

To cut the cost of meat in your menu, double your interest in new recipes that extend meat and use less expensive cuts. These three will help. They use round steak and lamb shanks.

Broiled Dinner Beef Patties
(Serves 3 to 4)

One pound ground round steak,
1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup chopped onion, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ cup butter or fortified margarine.

Combine ground steak, salt and onion thoroughly. Shape into patties 1½ inches thick. Place on aluminum foil on broiler pan or rub the pan with fat and omit foil. Place the pan with the surface of the meat about 2 inches from a hot broiler flame. Broil 10 minutes or until the surface of the patties is well browned. Turn and broil 10 minutes more. Heat together the Worcestershire sauce and butter. Serve the sizzling hot patties on hot plates and pour the melted butter over the patties.
Serve at once.

Deviled Dinner Beef Patties

Follow the above recipe but add to the beef 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1 tablespoon horseradish and 1 finely mashed clove of garlic.
When patties are broiled, add ¼ cup catsup to the butter and Worcestershire sauce and pour over the hot patties.

Braised Lamb Shanks
(Serves 4)

Four lamb shanks (about 2 pounds), 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ cup fat, 2 cups water, 1 cup diced carrots, 1 cup diced potatoes, ½ cup diced celery, ½ cup diced onion, ½ teaspoon thyme (optional).

Season shanks. Brown in hot fat in heavy skillet. Add 2 cups water. Cover and cook slowly or bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 1½ hours. Add diced vegetables and thyme during last 20 minutes. Add more water if necessary. Cook until tender.

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Orange juice, ready-to-eat cereal, soft cooked eggs, enriched toast, butter or fortified margarine, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Toasted
English muffins with melted
cheese and tomato sauce,
apple and cabbage salad,
canned fruit, oatmeal cookies,
tea, milk.

DINNER: Braised lamb
shanks, mashed potatoes, diced buttered turnips with chopped parsley, enriched bread, butter or fortified margarine, celery, raisin and cranberry pie, coffee, milk.

WE MUST OPEN OUR EYES

One of Russia's great advantages in dealing with the free world is the persistent reluctance of people outside the Iron curtain to recognize a world conspiracy in Soviet plans.

Yet the evidence mounts in frightening mass. It may come from any quarter of the globe at any time.

From Paris come reports that Russia may be getting strategic metals from the Belgian Congo, source of copper and the uranium used in atom bombs. What these metals are is not made clear. But South American traders are said to be buying beyond their needs and transferring the surplus to the Soviet Union.

Then, down in troubled Yugoslavia, Marshal Tito learned to his sorrow that two German technicians inoculated hundreds of sorely needed cows, horses and pigs with poison and escaped before being discovered.

These are but two incidents in the conspiracy that proceeds relentlessly everywhere, every day of the year. It's no small thing we're dealing with.

LESS TALK AND MORE THOUGHT

This country thrives on vigorous public discussion of all the issues, especially by our leading statesmen. It goes without saying that there would be no democracy without it.

But it's just possible that the "pop-off" school of statesmanship is too much in the ascendancy in this critical hour. Lawmakers rush into print with comment and criticism with breath-taking speed. Seldom do you hear one say nowadays: "I haven't had time to study the matter fully."

The air is filled with cries and charges which should only be made if they are well founded. Too often they are not.

Rash comment and wild, unsupported charges are no help to a people trying sincerely to make up its mind about the gravest questions it has ever confronted. A little less talk and a lot more study and thought might reduce the confusion our statesmen are manufacturing so adeptly these days.

NO VICTORY GARDENS

Department of Agriculture does not now plan to reintroduce the "Victory Garden" drive of World War II days. There are no food shortages in sight. Farm experts now say unofficially that there weren't any real food shortages in World War II.

There were some tough harvesting problems, due to manpower shortage. But community organization of its citizens to pick food crops when they were ripe, plus importation of Mexican and West Indian labor for migrant workers in the big factory-farm areas solved nearly all problems. Few crops were left to spoil in the field for lack of labor.

There may be some farm labor shortages again, to harvest this year's crops. But they won't be serious, say Department of Agriculture officials.

MID-WINTER ALL-BEATY CONCERT

It is purely a coincidence that all three music directors in Warren's public school system have the middle initial "A" but it is certainly no happenstance that all are doing a bang-up job with the young musicians of their respective groups. A splendid opportunity for school patrons to see what they are doing among junior high students is given in the annual mid-winter All-Beaty concert being presented in the school gym at 7:30 this evening. There is no admission charge for the program to be given by the Band and Junior High Orchestra, directed respectively by Howard A. Andersen, Carroll A. Fowler, and Harry A. Summers.

OLD LANDMARK BURNS

A Warren county landmark, erected about 1890, by B. W. Rogers, after whom that section between the Glade Bridge and the River Road service station, known as Rogertown, was named, was destroyed by fire discovered early Sunday morning. A three-story frame structure, containing between 15 and 20 rooms, it was one of the most imposing homes in or around Warren at the time it was erected. The fire recalls that for some years following the turn of the century one of the largest mills in the area was located at that point. Since 1924 when it was purchased by Herbert G. Eaton, the property had come to be known as "the Eaton home."

We've Known of Men Who Have Fallen Farther

Here And There

It will probably be learned with surprise by many present-day fight fans that there was staged in Warren fifty years ago a boxing bout that was stopped after three rounds by the police because the audience was making too much noise.

The fight was between Kid Leibrich, of Titusville, well remembered by older residents of the area, and a scrapper named Joe Leonard, of Buffalo, and was held on the evening of January 30, 1901. Regarding the signing of the agreement the Evening Times of fifty years ago today said briefly: "Kid Leibrich, of Titusville, and Joe Leonard, of Buffalo, have signed an iron-clad agreement to box 20 rounds at the Armory on Wednesday evening, January 30. The men weigh in at three o'clock in the afternoon of that day at 135 pounds. They box for a percentage, and the management states that their patrons will be fully protected. The boxers themselves, will have nothing to do with the arrangements. There will be a good six-round preliminary, and the bouts will begin at nine o'clock."

We'll have more about this exciting sporting event of fifty years ago, in latter issues, but it is interesting to remind at this time that it was started as scheduled with a great crowd present. The referee was H. E. Mitchell, and the timekeeper was Pat Burke. Kid Leibrich was a well known pugilist in the area at the time and any person who ever saw him in action will recall that he always put up a great scrap. Regarding the finish of the bout a writeup in the January 31st issue of the Evening Times says: "The men were in front of Leibrich's corner, mixing it up as fast as they could when the game ended with the referee calling the match a draw. Both of the men were thoroughly exhausted, and it is doubtful if either of them could have continued through another round of the furious fighting in which they had indulged. One swift punch of ordinary force would have put either one of them out of the running."

This And That: Birthday greetings to former Chief of Police George Haehn, of this city, and Bill Geer, now a resident of Jamestown, both of whom will be blowing out candles tomorrow. . . . Charles A. "Rip" Engle, Penn State football coach, scheduled to speak at the Sports Boosters' dinner on the 31st, is booked for an appearance this evening for the Beaver Club banquet honoring the Corry High School gridders at the Hotel Corry. . . . Three prominent figures in the fields of art, conservation and wildlife have accepted the difficult task of judging the annual Conservation Poster Contest for high school pupils; they are Walter Weber, nature artist, Albert M. Day, chief of the Fish and Wildlife Service of the U. S. Department of the Interior and Dr. William Mann, curator of the National Zoological Park in Washington, D. C. . . . The winning posters will be used to help publicize National Wildlife Week, March 18-24 and The Brokenstraw Fish & Game Club has already announced it will stage contests in the school at that place. . . . A face-lifting operation in the front end of Mack's News Room makes a great improvement in the appearance of the inside of the establishment as viewed from the sidewalk. . . . During the high wind of Saturday night and Sunday morning a large limb was snapped from one of the huge oak trees in Crescent Park near the intersection of Main avenue. . . . The Rt. Rev. Harold E. Sawyer, bishop of the Erie Episcopal diocese last week attended an interim session of the House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church in El Paso, Tex., stopping for a day en route home in New Orleans. . . . Two Warren county dairymen, W. E. Lutz, this city, and Robert W. Davis, Pittsfield, are among 87 Pennsylvania Holstein breeders recently admitted to membership in the Holstein-Friesian Association of America by unanimous vote of the board of directors.

Delayed Action on Inflation Makes Future Control Difficult

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—With the cost of living index going up a point or two every month and nothing being done about it, the outlook for controlling inflation is getting no better fast.

Economic Stabilization Agency's latest maneuver in this field was another fiasco. There are too many cooks spoiling this broth, for one thing, and they all have different ideas.

Toledo's round but sharp ex-Mayor Michael V. Di Salle (he pronounces it to rhyme with La Salle) thought he was to have complete authority in the price field. He took the job on that condition anyway.

On Jan. 5 the word went out that he was planning a temporary 30-day freeze on all prices. He apparently thought he had his idea cleared with Charles E. Wilson, Director of Defense Mobilization. If he had not felt it was approved, Di Salle would probably have tried to think up something else to do, since he is completely conscious that something ought to be done, and darn soon.

But five days later Dr. Alan Valentine, Director of ESA—the Economic Stabilization Agency—called it off. He didn't think the order could be enforced or administered.

Price Director Di Salle went along with this decision like a good boy. There was a grand chance for a bureaucratic brawl here. The team ducked it in the interests of internal harmony. But how long this combination can last is problematical.

DR. VALENTINE appears to be sincerely interested in doing the job without making any mistakes. He is very much the scholar theoretician and perfectionist. One of his admonitions to his staff has been to try to keep ESA from being criticized.

Mr. Di Salle is equally sincere, but intensely practical. All he knows is that food prices are constantly going up. People are complaining by the million. That was the justification for trying to hold prices. Di Salle believes this can't be done without making some mistakes nor without making some people angry.

After three months on the job, ESA has recruited a little over 300 employees. Only a few of them are veterans of the last price control battle and know what home-front war is all about. Most notable of the vets seems to be James F. Brownlee, New York businessman, who is an adviser to Dr. Valentine.

As of this writing, the price branch of the Economic Stabilization Agency could use half a dozen top-notch, experienced businessmen to handle its principal divisions—industrial manufacturing, industrial materials, machine tools, hard and soft consumer goods, forest products, drugs and chemicals. The food division is now in charge of Ed Phillips.

ESA meetings are being held all the time with industry representatives. The stabilization agency has a $4,500,000 budget on which to get organized. Dr. Valentine talks about a $160,000,000 operating budget for next year. Until he gets a full staff, he can't do anything definite on issuing regulations and enforcing them.

EX-MAYOR DI SALLE seems to have the idea, however, that the American people don't need all these legal orders to be good right at the start. If people were told what was expected of them now, most of them would comply either out of patriotism or fear that they'll get in bad with the federal government later if they don't.

This was the idea behind the proposal for a temporary, 30-day freeze on prices. It was to carry over till the formal regulations could be issued. It was to keep some manufacturers and merchants from the great indoor sport of marking up prices some more, whenever they didn't have anything else to do.

Every day's delay in trying to hold prices means that it will be just that much harder to freeze them finally. Rolling them back now seems out of the question, since there is no authority for subsidies in the Defense Production Act of 1950.

Split Family Purse Evenly,
But Don't Fight Over Money

BECAUSE the husband earns the pay check should he have the final say-so in how the family income is spent? A wife who thinks the answer should be "No" but has found that in her marriage it is "Yes," writes to me:

"Shouldn't the things a wife considers important carry as much weight as the things the husband thinks are absolute necessities? In our case it is a good, well-furnished home versus expensive vacations, a big car, equipment for any hobby that momentarily catches my husband's fancy.

"We have the big car. We take expensive trips. My husband never hesitates to spend money for anything that he wants for himself. But we can never 'afford' improvements on our house. When I mention that the furniture is shabby, I'm told it will just have to do.

"Yet if we saved in other ways, we could have some of the things that seem important to me, and which I think would really mean more to us as a family, since our children are reaching the age where the kind of home they have is important."

WOMANLY WILES WILL WORK WONDERS

IT does sound as though things are a bit one-sided in your family, if your husband always has the final say-so in how the money is spent. Don't start fighting over money, though, to get your way. It won't be worth it, even if you win.

Try to get your husband interested in how your home looks by using a little feminine psychology. You might, for instance, try inviting someone he considers important out to dinner and before the guest arrives remarking that you wish you could afford to fix up the living room a bit. He'll see how it looks more clearly when he starts looking at it through someone else's eyes.

But win or lose—don't take this money problem too seriously. After all, a happy home is a good home. And a home is never happy when a couple is fighting over money.

Young Rockne Shot Forcing Entry Into Wichita, Kas., Home

Wichita, Kas., Jan. 22.—(AP)—William D. Rockne, son of the famous Notre Dame football coach Knute Rockne, was reported in critical condition today from pistol wounds.

Officers said he was shot after he forced entry into a Wichita home Saturday night.

Sheriff Ty Lockett said Rockne, 35, entered the home of Joe Novacek, a used car dealer, and was shot twice by Novacek.

Rockne, whose noted father was killed in 1931 in an airliner crash in Kansas, underwent an emergency operation yesterday. His mother arrived here last night from South Bend, Ind.

William Rockne was a patient in the State Mental Hospital at Elgin, Ill., from 1936 through 1939 and received occasional treatment after that time. Friends of the family said burns suffered at the age of five and a delayed start in school apparently affected him mentally.

The sheriff said Rockne twice tried to enter Novacek's home and the second time succeeded in getting in. The officer quoted Novacek as saying he struck Rockne with a board and ordered him to remain until police arrived. Instead Rockne fled and Novacek fired at him three times with a pistol, the sheriff reported.

Officers said Rockne had been drinking.

No charges have been filed. Rockne recently had been working as a truck driver for the Salvation army. Mrs. Rockne told reporters at South Bend she had not seen her son for two years.

The ban covered the entire area where the four strong Allied motorized columns were operating.

There was no explanation. A memorandum said the order would remain in effect until further notice. Such a ban usually covers important troop movements.

Many Small Firms Are Counting Their Life Expectancy In Terms Of Weeks

BY JAMES MARLOW
Washington. — (AP) — The squeeze—less materials for civilians, more for defense—is beginning to show.

Last week the automakers said they're cutting 1951 production from 20 to 30 per cent below their 1950 output, can't get enough materials.

And for the same reason, the senate small business committee said, many small firms now are counting their life expectancy in terms of weeks.

Still, the pressure has been gradual, not sudden. It will grow more intense.

Defense production won't really be rolling for perhaps another nine months. The full tide of orders from the army, navy and air force hasn't started to flow yet. But since Jan. 1 it has gathered speed.

If we get into a shooting war with Russia in the spring, we will wish we had moved faster. But a shooting war then or ever is not certain.

Because of the uncertainty, the government had to make a choice. It could have cracked down all at once, months ago, and said "Perish."

"All production must stop except for essential civilian needs and the military."

That might have crimped the economy badly, with plants everywhere shut down and millions of workers out of jobs till their plants converted to defense stuff, if they could.

The step would have had to be taken, more or less, if we were actually in a major shooting war months ago. But this present job of defense production may have to continue for years, with no certainty of war at the end.

So the government chose to try to keep the economy as stable as possible while it built up its armed strength and defense production. At the same time, it wanted to do something else:

Expand this country's factories, by enlarging them or building new ones, so that we could increase defense production on a much faster scale if war came.

If it didn't come, then the nation would be, after a while, in a better position not only to keep defense production rolling at a good clip but start producing more stuff for civilians again.

How was this job to be done? Charles E. Wilson, boss of all mobilization, explained it this week when he said:

"We are trying to use the facilities and manpower available, such as government ordnance workers, before making demands on non-defense facilities which are presently producing for civilian demands. Additional billions in orders have been placed for military trucks, but in existing truck plants."

This delicate job of trying to cut down, without too many bumps and jerks, on materials for civilian goods while stepping up defense production has been entrusted to NPA — the National Production Authority.

What To Do About Cashing "E" Bonds Is Question Before Millions of Investors

BY SAM DAWSON

New York. — (AP) — "Should I hold onto that 'E' bond or cash it?" Many million persons are asking that today. Each will have to decide for himself, for there is a wide difference of opinion among the "financial experts" as to just how attractive Secretary of the Treasury Snyder's new offer is.

Some think the interest you'll get is as good as you can do elsewhere—if you're an ordinary citizen with just average financial judgment, and taking the matter of risk into consideration. Some see as attractive the fact that you can cut off for 10 years paying income taxes on the interest you'll be getting. Some stress the value of the nation or curbing inflation through saving—that is, holding onto and buying more government bonds.

Others doubt if bondholders will find Snyder's 2.9 per cent interest rate after attractive — many had hoped for a higher rate as an incentive for government bond purchasing. But others think that the main thing isn't the amount of interest you'll be getting, but just how much purchasing power the dollar will have when you get it back after another 10 years. They are of the opinion that the chances of the dollar's gaining in purchasing power, or even holding its own, are pretty poor as long as the defense program—and the threat of future warfare—continue.

Snyder hopes you will hang onto your bonds. Details of his plan aren't announced yet, but here's what he appears to be offering you:

If you bought a bond for $75 cash in 1941, it comes due this year and you can get $100 for it. (Of course, the dollar you'll get when you cash the bond will buy for you in the marketplace only the amount that 50 or 60 cents would have in 1941.)

If you hold onto that 1941 bond, now valued at $100, you'll forego for the time the $25 in interest the treasury owes you. But if you hold the bond another ten years the treasury will owe you around $133 on your original $75 investment. Your $75 will almost have doubled within 20 years—as time gets an assist from compound interest at a rate of $2.90 per cent a year.

If you hold your matured bond only another seven years or less, you'll be getting only 2.50 per cent a year, in the form of accrued value—not in annual interest payments.

Many are disappointed that the treasury is holding a 2.50-2.90 per cent annual value rate for bonds held after maturity. They think that interest rates in general should be allowed to rise to induce savings.

But Snyder's aim is to hold the treasury's long-term rate for all its borrowing to 2½ per cent. That saves the treasury in interest payments, now more than $5 billion a year.

DEFENSE CONTRACTS

Two defense contracts totalling $252,745 have been awarded to the Dresser Manufacturing Division at Bradford by the Chicago Procurement Office of the Army Corps of Engineers. The contracts call for delivery of 4,000 "leak clamps" in the early spring. The device was designed by Dresser and was used in large numbers in the Pacific and Europe during World War II. It is used to repair joints in portable pipe lines for gasoline, water, and fuel oils. No increase in equipment or employment will be needed to fill the contract, Dresser officials said.

VOYAGE TO EDEN

By Bennie C. Hall

Chapter 9

ELSIE MERRITT did not actually move in on Molly, though she did keep her promise to look after her. During the two days that she was confined to her stateroom, on orders of the ship's doctor, Molly had every reason to be grateful to the garrulous blonde. She was forced to revise her opinion of Elsie.

Whereas Elsie, with time on her hands and nothing to do but gossip, had been a nuisance, Elsie, with something to occupy her mind and her hands, was coming through as a real person. Her heart was as big as her body, and even Doctor O'Malley remarked on her competence in the sickroom.

"Not that you're really sick of course," he told Molly in a gently patronizing voice that she found rather irritating. "It's only a strained ligament. Painful but not serious. That is, if you'll do as I say and not as I do," he added, laughing a little. "No more dancing and playing around for a while. I know it'll be hard for you, but you must stay right here in your berth for a couple of days. You did run a slight temperature."

"I'll see that she stays here, Doc," Elsie said, "even if I have to move in completely and sit on her. These poor little rich girls haven't got a brain in their head."

"Don't be silly," Molly flung back. "You know very well I'm not rich."

"That's what they all say, isn't it, Doc?" Elsie waved a hand to indicate the comfortably large stateroom and its tasteful appointments. "You don't get quarters like this for peanuts, Right, Doc?"

Doctor O'Malley, in the process of bandaging Molly's foot and ankle, frowned. Obviously he resented the appellation "Doc"—as he would, being a snob, Molly thought. Nevertheless, he nodded absently and said:

"I wouldn't want her pulling a fast one and going dancing before I say the word. I'm counting on you, Miss Merritt, to see that our lovely patient does nothing foolish."

It was waggling a playful forefinger at Molly and saying:

"I see you know your butterfies, Doc. She's just like all the others, thinks of nothing but having a good time. But then she's never had to worry about serious things. You know, like earning a living and such."

"Oh, haven't I?" Molly said. "I've had plenty to worry about."

But she did not volunteer any further information, not only because she believed Doctor Peter O'Malley to be a snob of the first water, but because it had suddenly occurred to her that she herself was, in a manner of speaking, a pretender.

Wasn't she traveling in a style that suggested wealth and social position? A style that she, as a working girl in modest circumstances, had never been accustomed to and really could not afford. By rights, she should be in one of the modestly priced staterooms—a "clothes closet," as Elsie had termed hers.

She had not deliberately set out to create a false impression. She had simply wanted, for once in her life, to enjoy real comfort and luxury; had believed herself entitled to at least one wildly extravagant gesture. Now Elsie, impressed by her expensive state-room and the smart wardrobe she had managed to assemble, was endowing her with a background of wealth and social position that was far removed from the truth. She spoke to Elsie about it when they were alone together.

"Of course it doesn't really matter," she said. "I'm sure I'll never see these people again. But I wish you wouldn't say such things when they're so far from the truth."

"You wouldn't want to cheapen yourself by advertising you're poor, would you?"

"I wouldn't be cheapening myself," Molly announced indignantly. "It's no disgrace to work for a living."

"These people think so," Elsie pointed out slyly. "Maybe you won't be seeing them again, which I trust I won't either. But you'll be living with them for a couple of weeks. You wouldn't want to be ostracized like I was would you? I'm right here to tell you it's no picnic."

"Oh, pooh," Molly said. "You're just imagining things. Anyhow, the Hasbrooks know I work, and they certainly don't hold it against me."

"Oh, those scatterbrains," Elsie laughed. "They wouldn't know whether you were rich or poor, as long as you wore the right clothes and knew all the swears, including the latest dance steps. Chances are they didn't believe it anyhow."

"Why shouldn't they believe it? I told Bert right off that I worked for the government and was only a clerk."

"It's all I can do to believe it myself," Elsie went on to say, now that I've seen your accommodations. Gee, you've even got a balcony, all to yourself," she exclaimed, and got up to examine the small private deck designed for the comfort of luxury passengers. "Pretty snazzy, I'd say—for a clerk."

"I couldn't afford this either, and I shouldn't have taken it. But I—well, I guess I just wanted to see how it feels to live like the other half lives," Molly announced sheepishly. "I'd hate for anyone to know I was that silly. People would think I was crazy, and I certainly was foolish."

Elsie, a practical person in matters financial, agreed on that point. "Seems to me it's a toss-up as to whether they'll think you're crazy or decide the government's wasting their tax money. Once they find out you're only a clerk and traveling this way, they'll be writing their Congressmen complaining."

"Oh, no!" Molly frowned. It had not occurred to her that her foolish extravagance might have unpleasant repercussions. "Now I know you're joking," she said, laughing a little nervously. "Nobody would do a thing like that. Certainly not these people, who have everything and are traveling the same way."

Elsie shook her head. "They'd be the first ones to do it, chickadee. Truth is, I'd do it myself, being a taxpayer, if I wasn't your friend, and if you hadn't told me you were doing the paying." Then, noticing the unhappy expression on Molly's face, she grinned and added:

"Oh, I wouldn't worry about it. If you take my advice, you'll just keep mum about the whole thing and live up to these elegant surroundings. The less they know about your private affairs, the less they can hurt you."
